Recurring Charges Policy

When you agree to a recurring payment, we must inform you of the amount of each recurring transaction, the frequency of the charge, and the duration of the arrangement. If the payment you pre-authorise will vary in amount, we must provide you with an option to receive notice of the amount and the date of the charge at least 10 days in advance of the charge. If provides the option, you can choose to receive notice only if the amount of the recurring payment falls outside of a range to which you have agreed. If We did not comply with the above policy, report it to shelly@webquire.co.uk

You can cancel an authorisation that you have granted to a Us (including a recurring payment authorisation) by sending email to shelly@webquire.co.uk cancelling the payment authorisation. To avoid unwanted charges for a recurring payment, make sure that you cancel at least five days before your next scheduled payment. Cancelling a standing authorisation through email only prevents from charging your account going forward. You might still be responsible for payment or other penalties under the terms of your agreement with the Us. If you want to cancel your agreement with the Us, contact Us directly by email or call.

You can update or change the payment method that you have authorised to Us via contact us. To make sure that a recurring payment will use the updated payment method, be sure to make the change at least five days before your next scheduled payment.
